

115TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

H. CON. RES. 75

Expressing the sense of the Congress that homelessness in America should be eliminated.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

JULY 28, 2017

Ms. ADAMS (for herself and Mr. CONYERS) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Financial Services, and in addition to the Committee on Ways and Means, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Expressing the sense of the Congress that homelessness in America should be eliminated.

Whereas, on any given night, more than half a million Americans are sleeping in places not meant for human habitation or in temporary shelters for homeless persons;

Whereas nearly all Americans who are experiencing homelessness are “involuntary homeless”, meaning that they do not want to be homeless, are likely to be in financial crisis, and are in desperate need of affordable “work force housing”;

Whereas among persons experiencing homelessness, there is an overrepresentation of people of color and other vulnerable people, including young children, youth who have been abandoned by their parents, veterans and other Americans with severe disabilities, and women who have been subject to domestic violence;

Whereas according to the National Coalition for the Homeless, the rise in homelessness over the past 35 years is due to a growing shortage of affordable rental housing with a simultaneous increase in income inequality, especially decreased value of wages;

Whereas according to the National Low Income Housing Coalition, most cities across the country have long waiting lists for public housing and apartments subsidized under the rental assistance program under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, due to insufficient Federal funding;

Whereas according to the Housing Commission of the Bipartisan Policy Center, 7.8 million households with extremely low incomes—which is 68 percent of such households—receive no rental assistance whatsoever from Federal programs;

Whereas according to the National Low Income Housing Coalition, a lack of affordable housing and the limited scale of housing assistance programs have contributed to the current housing crisis and homelessness, with 11.4 million extremely low-income renters and just 35 affordable and available units for every 100 extremely low-income renter households;

Whereas homeless families with children constituted approximately 36 percent of the homeless population as of January 2016, and the number of families experiencing homelessness decreased by an estimated 5.6 percent since 2015;

Whereas according to the Urban Institute of Washington, DC, 29 percent of adults in homeless families are employed;

Whereas homeless families are under considerable stress, move frequently, and experience difficult living situations, such as overcrowded shelters or the apartments of relatives and friends;

Whereas according to the National Center on Family Homelessness, 71 percent of families experiencing homelessness are headed by females and over 80 percent of homeless mothers have experienced severe physical or sexual abuse during their lifetimes;

Whereas according to the Service and Housing Interventions for Families in Transition study, the majority of homeless mothers also reported major depressive symptoms;

Whereas according to a 2006 report by the United States Conference of Mayors, 55 percent of the cities surveyed reported that homeless families may have to break up in order to be sheltered and, according to the Child Welfare League of America, 1 in 6 families who receive child welfare assistance are homeless;

Whereas according to Doorways For Women and Families, anxiety and depression are 3 times higher for children who are homeless than for their housed peers;

Whereas according to Doorways For Women and Families, homeless children get sick twice as often as other children, have twice as many ear infections, 4 times more asthma attacks, 5 times more stomach problems, experience higher rates of obesity, have twice as many hospitalizations, and go hungry twice as often as other children, and homeless children are four times more likely to have developmental delays, twice as likely to have learning disabilities, and twice as likely to repeat a grade;

Whereas the National Alliance to End Homelessness projects a 33-percent increase over the next decade in elderly people who are homeless, increasing the number of homeless persons over the age of 62 from the current estimate of 44,172 to 58,772;

Whereas according to the National Coalition for the Homeless, older adults living in poverty are a forgotten population, who are now forced to grow old in the streets and in shelters due to the dramatic increase in poverty and decrease in the availability of affordable housing over the last several years;

Whereas there are tens of thousands of homeless Americans who are severely mentally and physically challenged and are forced to live in cars, in the streets, temporarily in other people's homes, in expensive hotels, on downtown benches or grates, or in homeless shelters because of long-term unemployment, insufficient Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) benefits needed to cover the costs of increasing private sector rents, or frequent denials of SSDI claims due to stringent eligibility requirements;

Whereas due to the current affordable housing crisis, mental health centers across the Nation are forced to release patients with limited or no access to affordable housing, creating a costly and needless "revolving door" cycle of repeated hospitalizations, arrests, incarceration, and the flooding of already overcrowded emergency rooms;

Whereas thousands of caring families across the Nation often lack the requisite training, or the resources needed, to provide loving care for homeless mentally ill family members, and providing housing for an untreated and unsupervised homeless mentally ill family member or friend can result in undue financial pressures, debt, and extremely dangerous life-threatening situations;

Whereas although the United States has been highly successful in dramatically reducing the numbers of homeless veterans and people experiencing chronic homelessness, there are still tens of thousands of veterans who remain homeless, or who suffer severe emotional disorders and injuries, who are in urgent need of affordable housing;

Whereas the United States is one of the wealthiest industrialized nations in the world, with a gross domestic product of $18.46 trillion in 2016 and more than enough resources to provide quality, decent, and affordable housing for all Americans who are currently in need of housing;

Whereas the success of communities using a strong “housing first” approach to sharply reduce homelessness among veterans and others demonstrates that homelessness is in fact a solvable problem;

Whereas the United States needs to institute a “housing first” policy that includes linking housing with supportive services for those with special needs, providing community living opportunities, and making affordable rental apartments and homes available for all families, women, and children;

Whereas there are cities and towns across our Nation where local housing authorities, community development corporations, nonprofit housing organizations, such as Habitat for Humanity, the Local Initiatives Support Corporation, the Enterprise Community Partners, and private real estate developers have created affordable and high-quality apartments for low-income families and individuals;

Whereas according to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Low-Income Housing Tax Credit program (LIHTC) is the most important resource for creating affordable housing in the United States today;

Whereas the LIHTC program helped spur the development of 926,000 multifamily housing units, and almost 2.78 million housing units placed in service between 1987 and 2014;

Whereas the recent collapse of the residential housing market has resulted in an unemployment rate in the construction industry of approximately 17 percent over the last several years; and according to the National Low Income Housing Coalition, every $10,000,000,000 dollars spent through the National Housing Trust Fund will create 122,000 new jobs in the construction trades and 30,000 new ongoing jobs in the operation of the rental housing; and

Whereas one of the most effective ways to end the revolving door cycle of homelessness is by creating jobs, so Americans can avoid becoming homeless or expedite getting out of homelessness: Now, therefore, be it

- 1 Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate
- 2 concurring), That it is the sense of the Congress that—
- 3 (1) given the severe emotional, health, safety,
- 4 and financial harm that results from being homeless,

1 the Congress should, without further delay, establish
2 a goal to eliminate homelessness, by 2020 or as soon
3 as possible, for families, women, children, veterans,
4 and those with severe mental and physical chal-
5 lenges;

6 (2) the Federal Government should, to the max-
7 imum extent possible, dramatically expand funding
8 for the rental housing voucher program under sec-
9 tion 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937,
10 the Community Development Block Grant program,
11 the HOME Investment Partnerships Program, the 12 McKinney-Vento homeless assistance program, and 13 the Low-Income Housing Tax Credit program, to 14 allow municipalities and public housing agencies to 15 partner with nonprofit and for-profit housing devel-
16 opers to renovate, construct, and provide affordable
17 housing for all homeless families, women, children,
18 seniors, and the mentally and physically challenged,
19 while creating good-paying jobs for unemployed
20 homeless people and residents who have the skills
21 needed to construct or renovate housing;

22 (3) legislation should be enacted that provides
23 substantial additional funding to the National Hous-
24 ing Trust Fund, for example, as provided in the
25 Housing Finance Reform and Taxpayer Protection

1 Act of 2013 (S. 1217, as reported in the 113th Con-
2 gress);

3 (4) the Federal Government should immediately
4 increase funding for effective job training, child care,
5 apprenticeship opportunities, and local direct hiring
6 job programs, especially for unemployed homeless
7 young adults; and

8 (5) the Federal Government should promote a
9 “housing first” policy that includes linking housing
10 with supportive services for persons with special
11 needs, and providing permanent housing connected
12 to employment, transportation, and job training pro-
13 grams for American families and individuals who are 14 capable and ready to become tax-paying members of 15 the economic mainstream.
